

Building a Foundation for Economic Development

Sorenson Research Park

Over 5,000 people are currently employed at Sorenson Research Park, many by some of the State's top tech and finance companies. At present, 29 acres of vacant and undeveloped land remain in the vicinity. However, new construction is limited by access and circulation problems. As a result, the City of Taylorsville is facilitating the construction of a new bridge across the Jordan River that will give the northern section of Sorenson a much-needed secondary access which will provide a more desirable situation from both a traffic and safety perspective. The new bridge will connect Sorenson with 500 West in Murray at approximately 4170 South (see illustration above).
