On Sat., Apr. 7 at 10 a.m., a Pinwheel Garden will be created at Taylorville City Hall in honor of Child Abuse Prevention month. The Pinwheel Garden, made up of 192 pinwheels, will be on display to the public for the entire month of April.

A brief ceremony by the Taylorville Exchange Club and Prevent Child Abuse Utah will be held at 10, and then the public will be invited to participate by placing pinwheels in the triangular garden.

According to Taylorville Exchange Club board member, Renee Sorensen, "Pinwheels reflect the bright future all children deserve. The pinwheel is a positive emblem of the positive effect we can have when we work together to prevent child abuse."

Taylorville City will also be flying a Blue Ribbon Flag for the month of April. The flag has the words, "Prevent Child Abuse," as the blue ribbon has been a symbol of the prevention of child abuse.

On Mar. 21 the Taylorville City Council and Mayor passed a resolution proclaiming April as child abuse awareness month. "We are proud of the work that the Taylorville Exchange Club does every year to bring out awareness," said Mayor Russ Wall. "Child abuse affects people of all socio-economic levels and we need to watch for signs and look for ways to avoid it."

This event will take place on the east lawn at Taylorville City Hall - 2600 W. Taylorville Blvd (5325 S.).
